Two ceramic Rottweiler dogs were stolen from this gravesite.

Recently there have been some episodes of theft from Opunake's Maori (Orimupiko) Cemetery. Jack Davey, the sexton, is shocked at the thefts, but would prefer to have the situation resolved without police intervention. He just wants the items returned – no questions asked. However, if the items are not returned the matter will have to be handed on to the Opunake police who may well have some leads.

The thefts that Jack is aware of involve two graves. The first one happened, he thinks, about a fortnight ago where a ceramic hand was chiselled or levered off the side of a headstone. This desecration involved the grave of a resident's mother and the family are understandably very angry. Jack said the daughter was quite irate. "How could anyone stoop so low", said the woman.

The most recent theft involved a grave where two ceramic Rottweiler dogs were stolen. Evidently the deceased man personally crafted the two dogs, so the theft is especially upsetting. Again, the family are most upset.

If anyone know anything about these thefts could they contact Jack on 06 761 8525. Alternatively, if you know the person who has acted so heartlessly, perhaps you can appeal to their consciences – assuming they have one!

Disappointing turnout

On Friday 21st September, I had the pleasure of listening to Shayne "Hurricane" Wills in the Sugar Juice Café. I had heard the man some years ago when he had a band called The Blue Buffoons. Blues men they were – buffoons they were not.

I was not disappointed. He gave an excellent performance of two hours, singing and playing an acoustic guitar and mouth organ. The repertoire was varied and included songs from Dylan, Hendrix to conclude with John Mayalls 'Room to Move'.

A wonderful evening with some great food. My only disappointment was the poor turnout. The management of Sugar Juice are to be complimented for putting the gig on, but one wonders if they will do it again.

John Hubbard.

Thank you

To the women who found my wallet outside St Paul's, and returned it personally to my home, thank you, thank you, thank you. Your honesty and commitment is most appreciated. I would like to have thanked you personally but my daughter, who answered the door, didn't know your name and we haven't been able to figure out who you are. Once again, thank you.

It is said that if you give, you will be rewarded ten fold, I hope this is true for vou.

BBC (Bible Believers Corner) The Final Revival

The Final Revival is really a restoration. In the past there have been revivals that have reformed the church. Luther in 1591 tried to reform the Roman Catholic Church which in those days was hell bent on raising money by allowing people to purchase places in heaven.

The Just, claimed Luther, will live, not by money, not by good deeds, not by pilgrimages or self flagellation, but by faith.

That reform changed the churches. So did Wesley's reform of Sanctification. It was OK to life by faith but one must keep oneself pure as well. And then came the Pentecostal restoration of spiritual gifts in 1906. It too reformed the churches right up to today. It is known as the charismatic or Pentecostal revival.

What is next?

It has already happened and is happening now. It is the restoration of the Word. Pentecostals and Charismatics point to Acts 2 v1-11. 120 people were baptized in the Holy Spirit This move does not reform the churches, it restores people to an individual walk with God. It is outside the churches. God will not look to see which denomination or church we belonged to, He will look to see if we have been born again.

The true and full baptism of the Holy Spirit changes a person. Those hiding in the upper room nearly 2,000 years ago were scared. They didn't understand what God had done through Jesus, but they stayed with Jesus' Word, "Stay in Jerusalem until you receive power from on high." They did that and when that power came they were no longer scared, they knew and understood what God had done and they wanted to share it with everyone else.

ble. As a result both Henry and Ralph have agreed to meeting in December.

And then Peter preached. He brought the people the Word of God for that day and 3,000 believed. They were born again, just as the 120 had been. All were made new people, bold, believers in God's Word. And that is what all true Christians are. Born again and believers in God's Word, because of course, God's Word is Jesus Christ. To have a final revival is to restore God's Word to its rightful place in us.

Coastal Taranaki Health Care Trust - September Update

How we have progressed to date

It commenced community fundraising with its fundraising charity auction in February 2012 and this, together with a door to door appeal covering the designated area from Oeo Road to Bayly Road between the mountain and the sea, which was carried out in March by four major community groups, has collected $454k of donations and pledges, which is above the Trust's original target of $411k. Letters of community support total 437 and donations are still arriving. The Trust has applied to the TSB Community Trust and has identified several other funding agencies that it will approach as part of its fund raising campaign. The Trust has plans to continue with fundraising events to reduce the need to have a commercial loan to cover any shortfall in funding. Already advertising is underway in the Opunake Coastal News about a Char-Degustation Dinner. Other activities we have in the pipeline include a Vegas Night which includes ring fights including kick boxing, mixed martial media also we will have a gambling room where you can try your luck at blackjack, roulette tables, poker games and other casino activities, and in the main bar we are planning to have live music - at this stage it is pencilled in for 01 December at Sandfords Event Centre.

In 2013 we intend to have a golf tournament at the Opunake Golf Club, probably ambrose style; more details will follow on that. In March/April a fishing competition is being planned over several weekends. This will be run a little differently to recent local competitions and rather than the norm of catching the biggest fish of a particular species, we are aiming towards a points system for the most variety of fish and only a maximum of three of any one species can be weighed in. Details will follow on this event nearer the time. Thank you to all those that bought and sold chocolates. There are a still a few bars out there on some shop counters in Opunake and Manaia.

The Trust has con-2. firmed a site within 80 metres, or walking distance, of the main street of Opunake. This is on the corner of Napier and King Street and is made up of three titles. Two belong to the South Taranaki District Council and one to the Order of St John. The Council, through its Long Term Plan submission and deliberation process, is assisting the Trust by creating one title and single ownership in the name of the Trust and incorporating its proposed new public toilets and its' funding into the new facility. St John have agreed to gift their land to the Trust and the Royal Plunket Society has agreed to relinquish its long-term lease arrangement with the Council. Both St John and Plunket wish to become part of the new facility.

Other Key Points

The Coastal Care concept plan incorporates a training and meeting room for educating at risk groups in all aspects of health and social well-being. Having the associated professionals based on site and a dedicated volunteer-operated health shuttle bringing clients to what will become a familiar environment at Coastal Care means less of our disadvantaged community members will fall through the cracks through the fear of attending appointments or having no transport to travel to unfamiliar places.

In addition to providing dedicated healthcare facilities, Coastal Care will also provide a common home for some of our local groups including Plunket, Food Bank, Volunteer drivers and Volunteer Ambulance officers. Also included are facilities for DHB, DIA and MSD personnel to operate from. We believe that by providing the concept "that any door is the right door" in Coastal Care, the familiarity of the building with local staff provides a more inviting atmosphere for those that might normally struggle to seek help. Providing facilities that have a wide range of services under one roof will allow one service provider to literally cross the passage with their client for assistance in another area whether that be health, social or just providing a square meal and someone to talk to. This approach we believe will reduce the negative impact of both the social and medical health problems in our community.

The Trust is a community mandated not for profit group with all trustees and wider group members drawn from the community and working voluntarily towards providing a facility that by providing health and social services ultimately improves the social and economic wellbeing of the entire community. Coastal Care is working with key stakeholders including STDC, DHB, Midlands Health, Tui Ora, St John, Plunket, Taranaki Iwi, MSD, DIA and local iwi and other local service groups.

The Opunake St John Ambulance is a volunteer service, the current facilities have no hot water and are well past use-by date. A new Ambulance station is incorporated in the concept plan with sleep-over facilities for an ambulance officer. It is recognised that, as the national qualification requirements are set higher for ambulance officers, less volunteers will be able to meet these standards due to personal cost and time restraints. With no medical services available outside business hours in the coastal region and suitably qualified volunteers already in short supply, St John believes the service may need to have a paid paramedic periodically stationed in Opunake. As part of the ambulance provided for a sponsored health shuttle van to replace our volunteer drivers private cars that are currently used. The vehicle will be available for taking local residents to the hospitals, specialists or visit family in hospital. It can also be used to bring residents to the Coastal Care facility for clinics. This shuttle has been offered by Red Cross, although St John have also indicated they are interested in providing this vehicle. Ambulances are too expensive to use as shuttles.

Southcare (Hawera) has expressed an interest in establishing a medical practice in Opunake. They intend to re-locate to the new facility once it is open. Dr Brent Anderson has approached Southcare to see if both practices can collaborate rather than compete.

There are two pharmacists who wish to practice in Opunake. One is the Oakura pharmacist who is leasing premises on the corner of Tasman and Napier Street and the other is the existing chemist who has a depot in Opunake but is planning to obtain a dispensing licence to be able to operate in the town and who has commitstation, space is also being ted to re-locate to Coastal Care.

The Annual General Meeting for the Trust will be coming up towards the end of 2012, so watch this publication in the future for updates of our progress and activities we are running.

The Taranaki farmers turned out in force on Thursday September 29 - it was Agricultural Machinery Taranaki Ltd (AMT)'s Open day. There was an extraordinary array of agricultural equipment on display at their 16 Glover Road, Hawera premises. Managing Director) John Hermann and his staff were kept busy all day, explaining the advantages of machinery, handing out pamphlets and even manning the sausage sizzle.

Perhaps the most eye-catching item on display, certainly the biggest was the Case-IH Quadtrac AFS600. It is one of the Steiger Series of tractors. There was a display board nearby, which outlined its many features, such as its "unparalleled power" and high, spacious cab. "It's a heavy duty pulling tractor", explained John Hermann. He added, "It's New Zealand's biggest tractor".

One of the visitors commented, "I'm impressed by this piece of machinery you couldn't help but be". He continued, "The drawbar alone would be the weight of a small car". The price tag on this one is $500,000!

Kidney beans for kidney dollars

Pihama WI women busy preparing and serving the nachos, with the help of Opunake Primary students.

There was a lot happening last Thursday September 27 in the kitchen/staffroom of Opunake Primary School. Several Pihama WI women, such as Suzi Stanley and Linda Campbell, were busy filling bowls with nachos corn chips, kidney beans and mince. Students were lined up ready to deliver orders to the different classrooms. The culinary event was intended to raise money for the establishment of a special renal unit for children at Auckland's Starship Hospital. At present the children have access to the unit used by adults - which is not ideal.

The kidney beans were chosen for the menu because they are symbolic of the kidneys involved in renal problems.

The students and their parents have responded well to the worthwhile fundraiser -120 children signed up for the unique lunchtime meal. Each payment of $3 will be sent off for the worthwhile cause. A total of $300 was raised.

Kidney disease affects many families. In fact, on the staff of Opunake School there are two members who have an immediate family member with kidney issues one has been on dialysis for many years.

Two students commented on the importance of the fundraising venture. "Keep up the good work", said Topine Karena.

"Thanks for everyone supporting the Starship Hospital", commented Zak Munro-Smith.

Frankenstein reappears in Opunake

Last week Opunake Primary School had its latest Open Day entitled 'Frankenstein's Lab'. A huge amount of work has gone into transforming the activity room and hall into something scarily spectacular. Certainly the visitors were impressed. "Excellent and outstanding as always", was one comment. "This would be the best display of children's work we've seen", was another comment.

Lurking near the entrance of the activity room were various painted ghouls who tended to leap out at you. One, holding a hacksaw in a menacing fashion, wanted to know which part of the body I could best do without! I opted for my head, but explained that I had to finish this story first.

It is hard to know where to start to describe the displays, but one feature was the interactive nature of many exhibits. "I loved how interactive the displays were" was one comment which summed up this aspect aptly.

There was a film constantly showing called 'Dracula's Son', with the song 'Monster Mash' playing.

One activity area featured volcanoes, with a large model volcano erupting if it was fed vinegar and baking soda, as Alyssia Redin (12) demonstrated. "It's been pretty cool because we've all had a chance to be part of it", she commented. She added, "It's been better than all the previous open days". Her classmates have been learning to conduct a scientific experiment.

Another display area compared the properties of different gases, notably Helium and Hydrogen. If a soccer ball was inflated with Helium and another with Hydrogen, which one would be the lightest?

There were some remarkable projects, such as Lucy Shegedin's demonstrating how fire comes out of a cigarette lighter. The Ackermann's 'Fawlty Towers' project was also impressive. Jaden Siciliano (8) obviously thought long and hard about Frankenstein. He wrote:

I think that Frankenstein shouldn't have made the monster because the monster made destruction and killed people. Instead he should have made a robot and taught it to be nice and taught it to talk nicely to others.

Well done Opunake Primary School. As one visitor put it, "Wow. Just brilliant". Rolland McKellar

Andrew Little, List MP

I had the privilege of spending last week in Taiwan as a guest of their government. It was eye-opening and encouraging.

I was keen to see why and how they made the transformation from a country heavily reliant on agriculture to one whose industry and exports are now predominantly technology-based. It's a country in our own backyard with a population not much bigger than Australia's, and so one we should take an interest in.

After being badly affected by the oil shocks of the early 1970s, Taiwan decided it needed to diversify and picked newly emerging technologies to divert its investment into.

The state played an important role. Without much in the way of advanced industry and being equally short on a workforce skilled in the new technology, science and engineering disciplines required, two projects were initiated. The first was to establish an institute to establish industrial technology development. Its focus was to research new technology with commercial applications then partner with private investors to develop production and marketing.

The institute set up for this role celebrates its fortieth anniversary this year. It has been spectacularly successful, having launched literally thousands of new products. It presently has a stake in ten thousand patents. Because of the work of the institute, Taiwan leads the world in semi-conductor technology. The second project was in the education system. If the country was going to transform its economic base it needed to get more young people into science, technology and engineering. So, the curriculum was changed and teachers' skills upgraded. To assist with this and to co-ordinate science within government, a powerful national science committee was created. It works with universities and business to promote research and development and ensure there is a pool of well-educated and motivated science students.

Today, Taiwan is a modern country that enjoys a good standard of living. Its build-constructed. Its infrastructure is good quality. It still struggles with a healthy income distribution – many working people (and remember, it has unemployment of around 4% compared to much higher figures for many other developed countries) are on low wages And then there is the political journey Taiwan has taken since 1949. The exiled government from mainland China controlled the country under martial law until well into the 1990s and there is conflict within the political system on just how to manage the relationship with China.

Nevertheless, even in a truly free and independent country like New Zealand, there are a few things we could learn from countries like Taiwan.

Leaving school with higher qualifications last year. At school level, nearly 72 per cent of school leavers achieved at least NCEA Level 2, compared with 66.4 per cent in 2009. So that is a significant improvement. 51 per cent of Maori students attained NCEA Level 2 last year, up from 44 per cent in 2009, and Pasifika achievement has risen from 55.7 per cent to just over 63 per cent. This is good news but we still need to work harder to raise the achievement levels of all students and these young school leavers in particular. A formal school qualification is a basic prerequisite for higher education and training and many entry-level jobs. Evidence shows that having NCEA Level 2 or an equivalent qualification allows better opportunities for further education, employment, health outcomes and an improved quality of life generally.

And with the world economy in a fragile state, having a good high school qualification that takes you into further training is important.

As more and more young people succeed, we are seeing less become involved in crime.

Six-monthly data on appearances at the Youth Court, and criminal and sentencing data for the District and High Courts, has been released. Our lower crime rate has meant fewer criminal charges laid, and fewer people in court. Most notably, fewer young people are being charged with an offence and appearing in court – down by as much as 25 per cent on last year. These results show National's focus on reducing crime is working. National is building a safer New Zealand and a New Zealand that will have a more qualified and skilled workforce.

Alcohol and drug treatment a vital part of Fresh Start

"Alcohol and drug rehabilitation programmes are a vital weapon in reducing youth crime, helping young people to break out of the cycle of addiction, develop pro-social skills and resist the negative influences of peers," says Associate Minister Social Chester Development Borrows.

Mr Borrows recently visited Odyssey House in Christchurch, which has 27 years' experience in providing alcohol and other drug rehabilitation programmes to adults and young people.

Odyssey House is one of four residential programmes providing Alcohol and Other Drug rehabilitation programmes to youth under Fresh Start. Fresh Start has provided over $1 million annually to fund an additional 32 residential and 200 community-based programmes nationally each year.

"Many serious young offenders have grown up in an environment where substance use is part of normal, everyday existence, and have entrenched alcohol and drug habits," says Mr Borrows.

"Through their therapeutic and holistic approach, residential programmes like Odyssey House are giving these kids a chance to break the drug and crime cycle and help improve their quality of life.

Young offenders referred for residential programmes are most likely to be those with severe addiction, severe co-existing mental health conditions and unstable home environments

Community based rehabilitation programmes also available for are young offenders with lower levels of drug and alcohol abuse. These programmes are individualised to the specific needs of each child and young person, and can involve one-to-one or group counselling, cognitive behaviour therapy, family therapy, education and harm minimisation.

"As part of this Government's drive to deliver a safer New Zealand, we're committed to making a real dent in the alcohol and drug issues driving many of our offenders. It's great to see the investment under Fresh Start delivering this change for our youth offenders,' says Mr Borrows.

The Fresh Start reforms were introduced in October 2010. They include a range of policy changes to provide more effective interventions for young offenders, as well as an investment of $84 million over three years in further programmes such as parenting education.

Farm supplies and other lies

Mission to edge of space

All systems are now "go" for Felix Baumgartner's jump from the edge of space. The Red Bull Stratos space capsule has passed high-altitude simulation testing after it was damaged in July's final practice jump, and a launch date has been set for October 8 in Roswell, New Mexico.

Roswell (New Mexico) -The final countdown for Felix Baumgartner's history making jump from the edge of space began recently after the Red Bull Stratos Technical Project Director Art Thompson declared the repaired space capsule is fit and all systems are go.

The tentative launch date for Baumgartner's attempt to jump from an altitude of 36,576 metres has now been set for October 8, ending a period of uncertainty for the team and, for Baumgartner, the agony of waiting. The Austrian extreme sport athlete had to endure delays due to the repairs, but is now delighted that the countdown is on for his attempt to become the first person to break the sound barrier in freefall and set four other world records in the process.

"I feel like a tiger in a cage waiting to get out," said Felix Baumgartner, 43, one of the world's most celebrated B.A.S.E. jumpers and extreme athletes, who in 2003 became the first person to make a freefall flight across the English Channel with the aid of a carbon wing. He will be flying as fast as speeding bullet during his supersonic journey to Earth.

Aviation pioneer Felix Baumgartner and the Red Bull Stratos team have been preparing for years to break the record for highest-altitude jump, eclipsing a mark set more than 52 years ago. The capsule, which at about 1.315 kilogram weighs a little bit more than a VW Beetle, was damaged in a hard landing following Felix's final test jump from a nearrecord altitude of 29,610 metres in July. During the jump Baumgartner was freefalling at speeds of up to 864 kilometres per hour, or as fast as a commercial airliner. The Austrian landed safely in another part of the New Mexico desert.

On September 24, the repaired capsule underwent testing in an altitude chamber at Brooks City-Base in San Antonio, Texas. The capsule was exposed to the extreme conditions it will face in the unforgiving environs of the stratosphere. After passing all the tests, the capsule was sent back to Roswell.

A central aim of the Red Bull Stratos project is to collect valuable data for science that could ultimately help improve the safety of space travel and enable high-altitude escapes from spacecraft. The jump will also attempt to break an assortment of records such as highest speed in freefall, highest jump, highest manned balloon flight and longest freefall.

Brilliant recital from young pianist

Classical music lovers enchance to hear a talented young performer when Breanna Morgan gave a piano recital at the Opunake High School Hall last Sunday September 30.

Breanna (18) is representing listen for. It was a nice touch Taranaki in The Pianoforte National Young Performer of the Year which will be held in invercargill on October 12-14.

The concert was held to raise funds for Breanna and her Breanna's supreme techniteacher, Elva Symons, to attend the competition. Breanna's gave a varied repertoire which included her competition pieces ranging from iconic classical music composers as Beethoven and Brahms through to some joyed a rare treat and a lesser known more recent composers.

Before playing, she gave a little talk about each of the pieces she was about to play sometimes pointing out things the audience should and an interesting addition to the programme. the chal-The first item, lenging J S Bach prelude and fugue in D minor set the bar high and showcased cal skill. The three very different movements of the Beethoven piano sonata Op 79, no 25 which followed demonstrated Breanna's versatility. I particularly liked the second more languid movement.

After this heady start two young budding pianists, Arianna Dingle and Macy Sinclair took centre stage playing several simple pieces - a novel inclusion in the programme.

Then it was onto Chopin's Waltz Op 18 written in 1833, which Breanna explained was more "for listening to" rather than dancing. It was a spirited and exciting romp which the audience seemed Next was Barcarolle No 1 in A minor by Faure which I particularly enjoyed. Depicting the sound of water lapping on the gondola whilst cruising down the river, the left hand contributed rhythmic continuity while the right hand, 'splashes' added colour. Gently lulling the audience into oblivion, it was an intriguing piece.

Breanna's Fur Elise in which one musical idea seamlessly and effortlessly gravitated to another, was an education in how this deceptively simple piece should be played but, in the hands of less qualified amateurs, isn't.

Brahm's Intermezzo Op 118 No 2 with its dreamlike melody was quite charming.

In what was otherwise a flawless performance, there was just one criticism, some of the endings seemed just a little abrupt detracting from the finish in some of the pieces.

Breanna then moved into a few more modern popular pieces including a piece by Enya which was a nice contrast before having a bit of fun with the audience who were asked to participate with The Tap Dance - some of us a bit slow on the uptake with the staccato clapping! At the end Breanna was joined by proud music teacher Elva Symons who perhaps best summed up the audience's feeling "We just loved you".

Name change and relocation of pharmacy

There has been a change of name and location involving two premises in Opunake and Manaia. Opunake Medicines, Health and Beauty at 38 Tasman Street has been renamed Opunake Pharmacy. It now has full pharmacy status meaning that prescriptions can be attended to immediately and on the premises. You are welcome to either bring your prescriptions into the shop or you can phone them in 06 761 8144 or use the fax 06 761 8140. You are welcome to use the Freephone 0800 367 232. The Manaia Pharmacy will change from its full pharmacy status and become an agent of Opunake Pharmacy. The Manaia shop, located at 47 South Road, will now become Manaia Medicines and is now trading as a prescription depot – it is no longer a pharmacy. However, regular courier service will ensure that prescriptions can be relayed to Opunake Pharmacy three times a day, between 10am and 4pm. Any wait for prescriptions to be filled will be minimal. The telephone phone number will continue to be 06 274 8200, Fax 06 274 8260. Morgan Arthur and Merilyn Tippett will continue their friendly, helpful service.

The changes in name and status in both locations are effective immediately.

The pharmacist Benjamin Abiola Araba points out that the same high standards and friendly service will continue at both premises. There will be no changes in staff, except that he will now spend most of his time at Opunake Pharmacy. Mr Araba says that when

Ravensdown AGM 2012 held in Taranaki

Ravensdown Manager Mike Davy with Toko farmer Colin Jones at the Ravensdown AGM

Ravensdown Fertiliser Company held its Annual General Meeting in New Plymouth on Monday.

Manager Mike Davey said the last time the AGM was held in Taranaki was in 1997, the same year that Ravensdown purchased Farmers Fertiliser Company in Taranaki.

The evening was attended by 500 farmers.

Retiring CEO Rodney Green presented a detailed account of the year's highlights:

- 15% growth in revenue
- Total revenue exceeded $1 billion
- Total equity at $377 million
- Farmer rebate $40.48 per tonne
- Fertiliser sales 1.56 million tonnes
 - Profit $52 million

Tribute Made

Chairman, Bill McLeod, paid a tribute to retiring CEO Rodney Green in a period where the company has gone from selling fertiliser in New Zealand to an international co-operative selling a large range of farm inputs and exceeding $1 million turnover.

Instead, the Washer family have generously donated the first yearling bull sold at each year's bull sale, an arrangement started over two decades ago and still continuing today. "The amount of effort I put

Farmers are a bit despondent at the moment due to tougher times," he said adding that they turned out for "a day out and to buy the "bulls."

Every bull was sold though it was nowhere near our best in terms of prices," John admitted adding that 2008 was their best year "when farmers were short of bulls after the drought".

John seemed reasonably happy though and said they achieved the market price on all bulls.

In total 480 bulls went under the hammer in just three

"Our Hereford and Angus bulls were in good demand," said John adding they fetched up to $2200 which he said was understandable as the beef price is quite strong. Ayrshire bulls were also "in good demand" and jersey two year olds sold from $1200-$1500 depending on the breeding indexes of the bull.

"These appear to be comparable to similar market sales," said John. This was the 27th bull sale Washer & Co have held and this year's sale attracted a crowd of around 200 who, after the auction, enjoyed the traditional complimentary lunch and refreshments. rightight of the day John said was the presentation of a plaque to Mary and John Washer in recognition of their generous donation of the proceeds of the sale of one bull to the Rahotu Pungarehu Lions Club. The Washers have donated a bull every year for the last 27 years the bull sale has been held.

For the last 5 years they have also donated a bull to the hospice of which Mary is a trustee.

"If no one gets hurt and every bull gets sold," it's a good day said John. He added that he really appreciated the loyalty of locals turning out.

"We hope everyone's satisfied. If they're not ring

Ten Opunake High School students have gone wild in their quest to win a scholarship to attend the Sir Edmund Hillary Outdoor Pursuits Centre, valued at $7,142. The group have entered a national competition named

"Students vs Wild" presented by Genesis Energy, where they have made a four minute video outlining how they would survive if stuck for a week in their school grounds. Grey, Gemma the director, said the concept was based on a rip off of Bear Grylls, with plenty of humour and slick editing. The whole school feature in an assembly evacuation scene, as the overall scenario is that Mount Taranaki is erupting. Many hours scriptwriting, planning, filming and editing went into the production, as well as specialist acting classes for many of the stars. CHAMPION OF CHAMPIONS

On Monday 24th September, three champion primary school basketball teams clashed together at the Hawera Hub to compete for the title of Champion of Champions.

Each year the three top primary school basketball teams who have won their basketball league in their home towns of Stratford, Hawera and Opunake, come together to play in a tournament to determine who is the ultimate Champion of Champions of South Taranaki.

This year Stratford was represented by Toko Primary School, Hawera was represented by St Joseph's Hawera, while St Joseph's Opunake represented Opunake.

The title went to the St Joseph's Opunake team who won 58 to 26 against St Joseph's Hawera and 50 to 32 against Toko Primary School. The game between Toko and Hawera was a close game, Toko winning 29 to 21.

The St Joseph's Falcons Basketball team made up of 6 boys and 2 girls played a strong defensive game and offensively played very well as a team, giving all players the opportunity to score.

Point-guards Jackson Sinclair and Nico Hill had the job of dribbling the ball up the court demonstrating their dexterity and skills.

Accurate passing to team mates Matthew sharp outside shooting from all players.

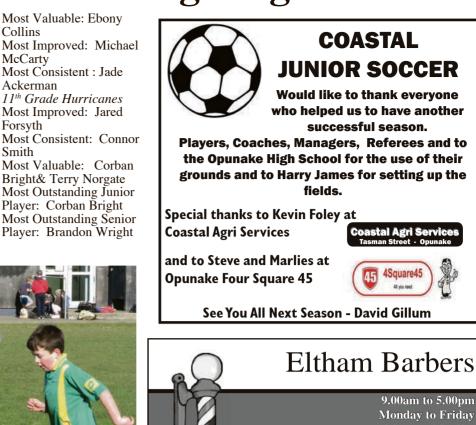

Defensively the team managed to box out the stronger opposition players allowing rebounds and fast breaks. This combined with a strategic game-plan by Coach Debbie Hohaia (who inherited the job from coach Angelo Hill), with the help of Chook Hohaia was the backbone to the team's win.

Matthew O'Connell (Opunake) was awarded the Top Player of the tournament for the boys. while the girls Top Player award went to Katie from Toko Primary School.

When you think of basketball in New Zealand a name that jumps into your mind is that of CJ Bruton. His name is synonymous with grit, perseverance and success, and he has been a pivotal part of the New Zealand Breakers achieving back-toback championship titles.

In Opunake when you think of basketball, another CJ comes to mind, that of CJ Taamaru, our very own little basketball star.

CJ Taamaru is eleven years old, and he goes to Rahotu Primary School. What is so special about CJ, is that he always has a basketball in his hand, and if he's not playing the game that he loves so much, then he's probably sitting beside mum, Janine Luke-Taamaru, watching his big sister Tiana-Vai play or train. Basketball is CJ's middle name.

As a member of the Taranaki Country Basketball U13 boys' team and as a U14 Koru Team reserve, CJ is certain of a very successful future in the sport that he loves, like in the footsteps of CJ Bruton. That is of course if CJ receives a gift that money just can't buy, that of a new liver.

CJ is currently in Starship Hospital, awaiting a Liver Transplant. That liver of course has to be a perfect match; so the wait for the family begins. Even after the operation, CJ and his family will stay at Starship Hospital and Ronald McDonald House; for up to three months to ensure that recovery and rejection of the new organ doesn't occur.

CJ was born with a severe liver condition which affects 1 in every 15,000 newborns and received his first operation at the age of 2months. CJ and his family have travelled to Starship Hospital in Auckland sporadically over the past 7 years for checkups; as well as being overseen by paediatrician Dr John Doran in Taranaki.

CJ and his family are remaining positive. With the help of whanau, friends, school classmates, a supportive community and a special surprise visit from the Taranaki Mountain Airs, CJ is in good spirits.

These ladies recently won the Taranaki Ladies Pennant Trophy after waiting out weeks of bad weather. After six failed attempts they finally got to play on the 24th September at Stratford beating Patea in the Finals. The team was Diane Forsyth, Patti Smith, Cathy Williams(Caddy). Betty Gadsby, Jan Deegan, Margaret Wellington and Lois Simpson.

One of the Ladies commented that it was a pretty good effort and some members of the team are in their 70s. Congratulations on a great result.

Oil and water don't mix - artists take a stand

Graham Kirk, the organiser of the exhibition, with his work 'The Phantom and the Frackers' (Acrylic on board).

In an exhibition organised by artist Graham Kirk, the cream of Taranaki artists were recently out in force at The Village Gallery, Eltham to express their opposition to the mining technique known as fracking (hydraulic fracturing). Many of the artists attending the official opening last Sunday (September 30) expressed their disapproval the way they express themselves best - in an artistic exhibit. One exhibit (mixed media) by Wayne Morris and entitled 'Oil and water don't mix' summed up the gist of the exhibition rather succinctly. There were exhibits, from artists such as Marianne Muggeridge, Roger Morris, Dale Copeland, Alby Carter, Teresa Goodin, and Michaela Stoneman - to mention just a few.

Cr Michael Self acted as the MC and introduced several speakers such as Sarah Roberts, Green MP Gareth Hughes and others.

Michael spoke of a recent visit to Venice where he viewed a wish tree ('Artists against Fracking') and one contributor was Yoko Ono, who has expressed her opposition to fracking. Visitors were invited to make a wish. "My wish", said Michael, "was that her wish can be transferred back to New Zealand".

Sarah Roberts had her baby grandson Sam with her and asserted, "This is not the future I want for my grandchildren". One of the adverse consequences was air pollution "Why are we drinking water with benzene in it?" she asked.

Organiser Graham Kirk spoke briefly. "I just hope the exhibition will effect some change", he said.

Gareth Hughes acknowledged the "Importance and depth of the campaign". He praised Sarah for her commitment. "She's done some fantastic research", but added,

"She shouldn't have to do it. He felt the Government should be shouldering that responsibility.

A band 'The Fractured Frackers', featuring such musicians as Mike Gordon and Steve Muggeridge, played some soulful music while visitors contemplated the excellent exhibition. Songs such as 'Sunny' and 'Don't You Make My Brown Eyes Blue' added a tuneful musical dimension to the event.

The exhibition has the support of Deputy Mayor of South Taranaki Alex Ballantyne who commented,

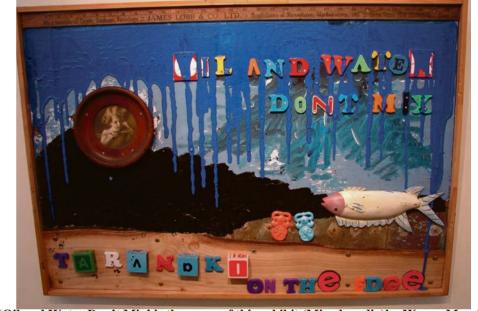

"I'm right behind the artists making a stand on the issue".

The exhibition will continue to October 19. The Village Gallery is situated at 166 High Street, Eltham. The gallery is open 10am to 3pm, Monday to Saturday. Regardless of your views on fracking this thoughtprovoking exhibition is well worth seeing. Most of the art is for sale.

As Michael said, "The art would grace any home and will also make a statement". Rolland McKellar

Fond memories of Ronald Hugh Morrieson

The writer and musician Ronald Hugh Morrieson died many years ago, in 1972, aged just 50. However, memories linger on for old friends such as Bruce and Irene Hewson of Hawera. It was a pleasure to meet them just last week.

Bruce's memories go back to his single days as a close friend of Ron's, with a shared interest in music. Bruce didn't play in a band and wasn't a musician as such, but enjoyed singing at parties and could play the piano.

One of the first things the couple said was it was shame (for me) not to have met Heather Stowe, who was a close friend of Ron's, but died in April of this year. She would have had lots to share.

Bruce and Ron used to visit each other's homes. Later, when Bruce married Irene (nee Wadsworth), it became a family affair. The couple's children even had music lessons from Ron. He taught portant art event.

She recalls a time when Ron took the family up to the iconic attic to show the children the violin that his grandfather Charles Johnson had crafted. The children were intrigued. The attic is currently being restored by Tawhiti Museum and the process is nearly complete.

Initially, Ron and Bruce met as a result of their shared love of music. How good was Ron as a musician? "Top man," says Bruce. He added, "He played the bass built by his grandfather". He also played guitar and piano, explained Bruce.

A car was important to get to gigs, as well as for other uses. Bruce remembers well Ron's "pride and joy" - a 1937 Nash, which got considerable use.

Ron loved visits by the couple and their children, "He was always very welcoming" and had a genuine affection for the couple's children.

The couple said Ron took his mother Evelyn's death very hard indeed and it had a negative effect on him. "After his mother died that was when he went downhill and became reclusive", Irene explained." His mum and aunt doted on him", Irene added.

Irene said Ron signed copies of his books for them, but they seem to have disappeared over the years. They said they had read and enjoyed his books. "However, a big part of it was that Ron had written them", commented Irene. They also saw the film of 'Predicament' when it was released. He is the only New Zealand writer to have had all his novels made into feature films. Less well known than his literary and music ability was his skill as a billiard and snooker player. Bruce was of help here. "I converted a room for him - converted it to a billiard room", said Bruce. "The table was lovely too", he added. This was at the Regent Street (and corner of South Road) home, which both Bruce and Irene found unappealing. "It was a big old spooky place", said Irene.

"It was very gloomy. It seemed to go on forever", said Bruce.

Opunake High School pupils will also show their creative works there.

Visitors to the coastal township can see art displayed in the retailer's windows on Tasman Street.

The house was demolished amid controversy in 1993 to make room for a fast food outlet! However, the attic – where Ron reputedly undertook most of his writing - was saved. Also saved were other items, such as the staircase leading to the attic, a fireplace and surround, as well as wood which was used for tables and counters; these were used to establish Morriesons Cafe Bar.

The presentation of this year's Ronald Hugh Morrieson Literary Awards will be held on Friday October 26 (7pm) at Hawera Library Plus, 46 High Street, Hawera. The event was judged by writer Fleur Beale. Phone 0800 111 323 if you would like to attend the function.

WHAT'S ON

Early Christmas in Eltham

The Friends of the Eltham Town Hall have a treat in store for residents - an early Christmas. Of sorts. The big event runs from October 12 (Friday) to October 14 (Sunday). Where? Where else - the Eltham Town Hall.

The event is called 'The Great Eltham Christmas Tree Festival' and is intended to bring a little brightness and pre-Christmas cheer after a long, cold winter.

The first activity starts at 1pm (to 7pm) on Friday October 12 – setting up Christmas trees. Public viewing can occur October 13-14, 10am to 4pm. Entry is by gold coin donation. Or you may prefer to donate non-perishable food, such as canned goods, to the Eltham Food Bank.

There will be a Wishing Tree, with donations going to the Taranaki Hospice. There will lots of Christmassy food such as mince pies, scones and pikelets. You can try your luck in one of our raffles. You may win the Christmas cake or one of Rob Hartwell's candelabras.

There will be a special celebration. Four people will be made Life Members of Friends of the Eltham Town Hall. Who? No, sorry that's a secret for now!

What we need now is lots of support from schools, community groups, businesses, churches as well as individuals. Yes, you!

If you can help in any way

- we need more trees, for example - or require more information contact Pauline Turpie (Secretary) on 764 8542 or call by at 5 Julian Street, Eltham. You are welcome to email me:

Survive and Thrive – a book review

Survive and Thrive: A Suicide Prevention Handbook for Those at Risk and Those who Want to Help. Written by Sylvia Huitson. Published by Active Intentions, New Plymouth (2012).

With Suicide Prevention Day having just passed, the entry of this book into the counselling literature is timely Sylvia is well-known as a respected counsellor who has helped many people, both in Hawera at South Taranaki Counselling and also in her New Plymouth wing – Active Intentions. Less well known is the fact that she has a unique perspective as a former sufferer from depression and a survivor of a suicide attempt almost thirty years ago. She has been involved in many counselling agencies such as Lifeline and locally she is a valuable member of the Suicide Prevention Committee.

Sylvia's just released book is a welcome addition to the literature and is mostly aimed at people suffering from depression and possibly at risk of suicide, as well as their nearest and dearest. The book is mostly free of technical terms, although she does mention important professional influences such as Carl Rogers, Albert Ellis, BF Skinner and others. Perhaps Ellis' rational problem solving perspective shines through the most vividly

It is a very positive book from someone who loves life and has a personal horror of anyone sharing the psychological depths she once did. "...if a life can be saved by reading this book it has served its purpose well" – is the book's guiding light.

The book has a holistic flavour, embracing everything from self-help, self-love, healthy practices, through to counselling and medication; many aspects have their due place and merit.

At the end of the book are references and the websites of agencies that can help, such as Lifeline, Mensline, Youthline and Suicide Prevention. I thoroughly recommend this book. Copies are available at $34.50 (inc GST) from www.sylvia-huitson. activeintentions.co.nz or counsellor.sylvia@xtra.co.nz

The event is being run by the Opunake Surfcasting & Angling Club in conjunction with Fish & Game NZ. The trout will be corralled within a holding net at the top end of Opunake Lake (through the gate off Aytoun Street) and children will be able to fish for them with the help of local experts. Simon Young from Opunake Hydro will ensure that the lake level is held steady for the event, which will run from 10.00am to 2pm on the Saturday with all fishing gear supplied. The angling club is requesting a donation of $2 per child, with the proceeds going towards spot prizes for the event.

While everyone needs a licence to fish for trout, Fish & Game NZ will issue a permit allowing children to fish for free during the kids' fishing event. At the event's conclusion the net will be removed and the remaining rainbow trout will be available to anglers who Percy Thomson Gallery presents its latest exciting exhibition and offers a great holiday option.

The Body In Action – a touring exhibition by Te Manawa Museum's Trust (Palmerston North) is a highly interactive exhibition providing fun and entertainment for both young and old. The many hands – on activities provide a great way to learn all sorts of interesting facts about the body and its functions. Test your flexibility, your brain power, your hearing, or your sense of smell!

Are you in-charge of your grandchildren during the school holidays? Looking for something to do? Bring them to the gallery and they will entertain themselves while you either join in and have fun or sit back and have a cup of coffee in the Sgt Peppers Café.

Running concurrently in the Community Gallery is 'Colour Me Red' – a red hot embroidery touring show in response to New Zealand Embroiderer's Guilds annual challenge open to fibre artists from all disciplines around the country. The 44 entrants had to include some stitch content and be posted in an A3 or A4 padded post bag. The exhibition includes everything from patchwork, and applique, collage and mixed media.

This exhibition closes Sunday 14 October at 3pm.

Catch the Body in Action exhibition at the Percy Thomson Gallery in Stratford.

The Modern Jivers coming soon

Have you always wanted to learn to dance? Classes too far away perhaps. Well, here's your opportunity. Maria Cashmore, an awardwinning dancer and dance tutor, is running Thursday classes in Opunake, starting Thursday October 18 in the Opunake Town Hall (7.30pm). The other tutor will be Simon Forsyth, Maria's dancing partner. At the last New Zealand Open Modern Jive Championships the duo won a national title in Modern Jive. The Modern Jivers' dancers came home with a total of eleven trophies.

Simon Forsyth is a local farmer who loves dancing. "It was just an outlet to get away from the farm to meet people". However, he hardly expected a National title.

For the really committed there are 'All Day Partner Dance Workshops' in Hawera on October 13, which run from 9am to 5pm. These will be held in the Presbyterian Centre, 35 Argyle Street, Hawera. The workshops cater for dancers of all levels of ability – from rank beginners, intermediate level dancers - all the way to highly proficient dancers, who can learn Advanced Modern Jive Competition moves. Helping Maria will be three other tutors, including an expert dance couple from Wanganui, Mark and Janine Glastonbury.

What partner dance styles can you learn at either the Thursday Opunake classes or the Hawera workshops? The answer is basically any 'partner dance' – Samba, Cha Cha Cha, Modern Jive, Square Waltz, Rhythm Foxtrot and Meringue (time permitting).

The Modern Jivers is a non-profit partner dance group supported by the Hawera Community Board, Lysaght-Watt Trust, Creative Communities and others. Each participant's fee is kept as low as possible.

Maria says the main aim is to socialize and have fun, as well as to learn how to dance with our partners and friends. While admitting that, for her, tuition is a lot of hard work, she comments, "I'm happy to see people have fun while sharing a passion for partner dancing". You can contact Maria Cashmore by phoning 027 727 1749.

Tattoo Art Drawing Workshop

Chris Eiffe and Lester Ransfield will be facilitating a drawing workshop as part of Egmont Community Arts Council's Tattoo Art Installation, which is also funded by Creative Communities NZ. Lester has a Fine Arts Degree in Taa Moko and Chris has been drawing and more recently tattooing Kiri Tuhi (draw on the skin) for several years. Kiri Tuhi and Taa

on the Square Hawera

Moko is an impressionable style of Maori art that many choose to use to express and to interpret their genealogy, history or mythology resulting in a tattoo that is unique and holds significant personal meaning.

Chris and Lester's drawings and interpretations are influenced by their own tribal affiliations, life journeys and learning. Therefore they are accustomed to working for and with others. Together, their experience and knowledge will be well worth embracing as a tool for beginning or extending a portfolio.

The drawing workshop has two openings on Saturday 13th October; the first from 10am-1pm and another at 2pm-6pm. They will be held at the Opunake Surf Inn, upstairs in the Common room. The workshop is open to anyone 14 years and over and costs only $10 with drawing pads and pencils provided. To register contact Nick on 06 761 8112.

Tattoo is a commitment to a person>s desire or design that ultimately together creates a masterpiece for life.

Mind landscapes

The exhibition for October on the Virtual Tart website at www.tart.co.nz is Landscapes of the Mind, by Stella White of Florida, USA. Thank you for all the feedback for my exhibition last month. Artists really do appreciate your comments. Without an audience it's a bit like singing in a vacuum. Cheers. & thanks Dale Copeland
